Appendix 5-E. Identifying the Type of Audio or Video Product Needed

Introduction
There are four types of video or audio products that AHRQ uses to disseminate its messages: narrative (scripted story), instructional, informational (training), and PSAs (public service announcements). If you are considering producing a video or audio product, it should fall into one of these categories. By working with the Office of Communications on your video or audio product from the beginning of your project, you will help ensure that your products are constructed to meet the needs of AHRQ and your target audiences.

Narrative (Video)
The following are examples of narrative videos from two different AHRQ campaigns:

- Aprende a vivir: Episodio 1—Noticias misteriosas:

The following are examples of audio PSAs produced for AHRQ programs:

• Treating High Cholesterol:

• Tips To Prevent Medical Errors:
Videos produced on behalf of AHRQ should be delivered with the original (or uncompressed) file format that can serve as the Agency’s master from which all other formats will be created, converted, or compressed. Before producing a video for AHRQ, please provide the following information in an email to socialmedia@ahrq.hhs.gov:

- A brief description of the project
- AHRQ lead or program liaison
- Timeline for project
- Intended production acquisition and resolution format (the type of camera/format that describes the quality of the image being acquired)
- Intended method of distribution (Web, YouTube, hospital patient channels, broadcast, and so forth)
