Situation Monitoring
13. Individuals can be taught how to scan the environment for important situational cues.
14. Monitoring residents provides an important contribution to effective team performance.
15. Even individuals who are not part of the direct care team should be encouraged to scan for and report changes in resident status.
16. It is important to monitor the emotional and physical status of other team members.
17. It is appropriate for one team member to offer assistance to another who may be too tired or stressed to perform a task.
18. Team members who monitor their emotional and physical status on the job are more effective.
Mutual Support
19. To be effective, team members should understand the work of their fellow team members.
20. Asking for assistance from a team member is a sign that an individual does not know how to do his/her job effectively.
21. Providing assistance to team members is a sign that an individual does not have enough work to do.
22. Offering to help a fellow team member with his/her individual work tasks is an effective tool for improving team performance.
23. It is appropriate to continue to assert a resident safety concern until you are certain that it has been heard.
24. Personal conflicts between team members do not affect resident safety.
